

The Honorary Ironmen for the 2019 Homecoming is Mr Christopherson! He has a long tradition of being an Ironmen. Although he did not graduate from NCHS he student taught here in 1989. He then taught a year in California before returning to Illinois. He worked briefly in the chemical industry before finding his passion for teaching and returning to NCHS.

Three fun facts you may not know about Mr. Christopherson:

- 1) He has never taken a sick day in 25+ years of teaching
- 2) He doesn't own a cell phone
- 3) He has a twin

Mr. Christopherson is married and has three children. His wife (Indu) is a chemistry professor at ISU. His three children all proudly attended NCHS. His daughter (Rachel) graduated from U of I with a chemistry degree and is now in her third year of medical school. His son (Matt) graduated from U of I with a chemical engineering degree and works in industry. His youngest son (Peter) is a junior at NCHS.

Mr Christopherson enjoys travel in the summer but can mainly be found gardening and doing home improvement projects in the summer. During the school year he spends a great deal of time taking pictures at many of the NCHS events and posts them for parents/kids to download.
